

Energy storage workshop design

How long does it take to respond to a thermal energy storage workshop?

Approximately six weeks after the workshop, attendees were reengaged to solicit further information about their thoughts on priorities for thermal energy storage deployment. A survey was emailed to all workshop registrants, and they were given two weeks to submit their responses in an online form.

Why do we need a standard protocol for energy storage?

Standard protocols are needed for testing and comparing TES systems to each other as well as comparing TES to other types of energy storage. Wide variation in building codes can be a barrier to new technology implementation. Codes and standards will need to be updated, or new ones developed, to capture TES.

Who is the emerging technologies lead on opaque building envelope & thermal energy storage?

He is the Emerging Technologies lead on Opaque Building Envelope and Thermal Energy Storage R&D. Sven originally joined DOE in 2012 as an ARPA-E technology-to-market advisor, where he helped transition breakthrough energy technologies from lab to market.

Should building standards evolve to credit thermal storage?

Building standards may need to evolve to credit thermal storage. Rebates and other offerings can be used to encourage more decision makers to consider TES in buildings. It seems current consortiums are focused on electrical storage only. The TES industry should organize to present their case to regulators and policy makers.

Are energy storage technologies a viable alternative to batteries?

Thermal, mechanical, and chemical energy storage technologies are evolving to be a viable alternative to batteries for a range of energy storage applications.
